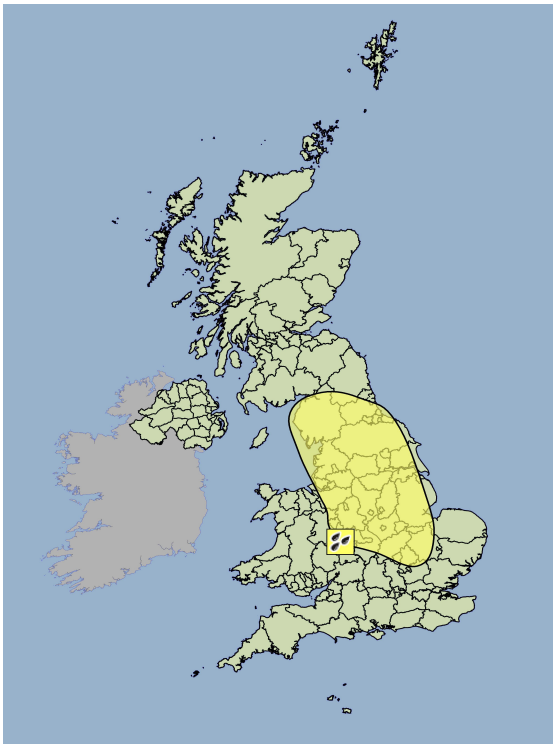
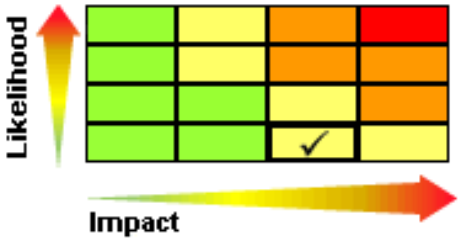
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Hot, unstable air coming up from France will coincide with daytime heating to bring the likelihood of temperatures into the low 30's Celsius locally on Saturday. This may trigger torrential thunderstorms, bringing the risk of more than 30 mm of rain in less than an hour. The situation remains finely balanced and this warning may be updated again through the day.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 15:00 on Sat, 22nd Aug 2015 until 23:50 on Sat, 22nd Aug 2015

Isolated thunderstorms may develop over the Midlands and parts of eastern England during Saturday afternoon, these moving north into northern England during the evening.

Whilst a lot of places will miss these thunderstorms, where they do occur be aware of the risk of localised surface water flooding, strong gusts, lightning and hail.

This is an update to the Alert issued on Friday, to expand the warning area north and west, whilst reducing the risk in southeast England.
